Teacher's Observations

The story recounts a simple argument between “5 cute little kittens” and “5 huge mean dogs” with little detail or description.

- ◆ loosely connected events with some detail
- ◆ generally simple language with little variety
- ◆ relies on simple and compound sentences
- ◆ has a beginning, middle, and end
- ◆ development is incomplete; ending is abrupt
- ◆ characters are introduced, but they are not described
- ◆ several errors, but these do not interfere with basic meaning

The 5 little kittens

One day there was 5 cute little kittens, and then 5 huge mean dogs came by and said "What are you doing on our property grr" "We were just playing prrow" The 5 cute kittens said. " Well its our property so get off" The 5 huge mean dogs said. "No way" The 5 cute little kittens said. "If you dumb little kittens don't get off our property we'll chase you down the hiway" The 5 huge mean dogs said. "But were just little kittens and we cant run yet" The 5 cute little kittens said. The 5 kittens wouldnt get off the mean dogs property, So the mean dogs chased the little kittens down the hiway and the kittens stoped because they saw a phone booth, and they went in the phone booth and called the dog pound and said "Meow, meow, meow." The dog pound said "OK". And then the dog pound took the 5 dogs away and the kittens lived happily ever after.
